

Doesn't anyone wear yellow anymore?

Crayons are the beginning of a life filled with art and color. The first box of 8 color crayons was sold in 1903. This week we are going to revisit those 8 colors. Your task is to take a photos of things that are the colors from the basic box of crayons: blue, red, yellow, orange, green, purple, brown and black.

You should take photos of different subjects to get those colors.

Think about your subject and what you would like to show someone or describe about what you are taking a picture of. Think about taking a photo of your subject so that we know what color you were thinking about, but do your best not to just fill the frame with whatever color it is. And most importantly! Have fun!
